Friday 13th

I am not a superstitious person, but if it's Friday 13th, I know it always brings bad luck.

Last time on Friday 13th, everything went wrong from the moment I woke up. In the morning, I didn't hear my alarm clock, and I got up too late for school. On that day we had a test in maths. When I have a test, I always take my lucky charm to school. It is a small silver teddy bear which always brings me good luck. I couldn't find it at home, so I went to school without it, and I was sure I would do badly in my test.

After that, we had a biology class. I saw a big black spider on my table, and I knew it would bring me bad luck. Last year when I saw a spider, I broke my arm in the playground. During the break, I didn't go to the playground. Instead, I stayed in the classroom. I tripped over my friend's bag, dropped my mobile phone, and its screen cracked.

On the way home, there was much traffic on the street, and I came home late. I missed my favourite programme on TV. "It can't get any worse," I thought to myself, but it did. Around eight in the evening, there was a heavy storm, and there was no internet connection. So I couldn't watch films on youtube, I couldn't contact my friends, and I had to spend the whole evening alone at home.
