My best journey

Visiting the Statue of Liberty in New York

My best journey ever was to New York City last year. I went with my parents. The flight was long. It took almost ten hours. First, we flew to London, we waited for two hours there, and then we flew to New York. From the airport we took a famous yellow taxi and went to our hotel. We soon made friends with a taxi driver who told us a lot of interesting things about the city.

On the next day we went to see the Statue of Liberty. We set off from our hotel early at eight o'clock. We got on the underground train which was very crowded, and I have never seen so many different people. Then, we had to wait for a ferry which took us to the island. Before getting on a ferry, we had a security check just like the one at the airport.

When we arrived at the island, we went inside the Statue. First, we climbed the pedestal on which the Statue stands, and then we climbed up 160 steps to the Crown of the Statue. Before the climb, I had to leave my big backpack in a locker. There is no lift inside, and the climb was difficult because it was very hot inside. From the crown there was a fantastic view of the city and the New York Harbour. I took a lot of photos.
