Tarantula

I am going to review the film "Tarantula, a Killer-Spider". It is a science-fiction film set in New York City. The film is based on the book "Tarantula" and was directed by Steven Brown. The film stars Matt Smith as the main character.

Swarms of ants attack people in New York City. People stay in their houses because they are afraid to go out. Scientists try to save the city. A young scientist called Mark does an experiment and produces giant tarantulas to kill the ants. Tarantulas breed quickly, but when there are no ants to eat, they start to attack children. Their bites are very poisonous and more and more children die. When Mark finds a tarantula in his house, he must kill it fast.

I liked the film because it is very exciting, with many twists. I didn't like the scenes with a lot of blood, and I think it is not suitable for children. The ants and tarantulas looked very real and scary.
